BIDEN SEEKS TO EASE TURKEY TENSIONS OVER COUP SUSPECT GULEN

Vice President Joe Biden sought on Wednesday to ease tensions with Turkey over its demands for the extradition of a cleric it blames for last month's failed coup, saying Washington was cooperating but needed evidence to meet U.S. legal standards. Speaking during a visit to Ankara, Biden's comments came hours after President Tayyip Erdogan said Washington had "no excuse" for keeping hold of Muslim cleric Fethullah Gulen, who has lived in U.S. exile since 1999. The extradition demand for Gulen and Turkish perceptions of an unsympathetic Western response to the coup attempt have chilled relations between the United States and Turkey, a NATO ally and partner in the U.S.-led war on Islamic State. REUTERS

TURKISH TANKS ROLL INTO SYRIA, PUSHING ISIS OUT OF KEY BORDER TOWN

Syrian rebels backed by Turkish special forces, tanks and warplanes entered one of Islamic State's last strongholds on the Turkish-Syrian border on Wednesday, in Turkey's first major U.S.-backed incursion into its southern neighbor. A column of at least nine Turkish tanks crossed into Syria with the group of largely Arab and Turkmen rebels to drive Islamic State out of Jarablus and surrounding villages. A Reuters reporter at the border witnessed intense bombardments, with palls of black smoke rising around the town. President Tayyip Erdogan said the operation was targeting both Islamic State and the Kurdish PYD party, whose gains in northern Syria have alarmed Turkey. Ankara views the PYD as an extension of Kurdish militants fighting an insurgency on its own soil, putting it at odds with Washington, which sees the group as an ally in the fight against Islamic State. REUTERS

HUNDREDS OF POKEMON GO FANS HIT THE STREETS OF TAIPEI

Hundreds of Pokemon Go enthusiasts caused a stampede in Taipei in a rush to 'catch' rare Pokemons. The streets in Beitou were packed with people playing the location-based game and hunting for the virtual monsters through their smartphones. Many rushed to the spot where the characters apparently appeared. "There is Snorlax, Gyarados ... Aerodactyl is a bit more common," said one player, naming the characters that caused the commotion. So-called Pokestops are often established in parks, causing many to gather there. "Very cool, I think I have strong ones [Pokemons]," said one young player who was satisfied with the night's outcome. REUTERS

The bizarre Boston forecast you never knew you wanted

Thousands of Bostonians are getting their weather report from Weather Is Happening, a service that claims to be manned by an "interdimensional being" here to save the Earth from climate change.

CHRIS CAESAR
chris.caesar@metro.us

Getting your morning forecast can be just as personal as getting your morning news — most folks turn to their phones, others may turn on The Weather Channel.

And some Bostonians put their trust in an amorphous, interdimensional entity from the "weather realm" who possesses the mind and body of a local Boston man.

It's true! Kind of: The Boston-based "Weather Is Happening" project has a Facebook, Twitter, Tumblr, YouTube channel and deeply bizarre website, all with a growing following in the thousands.

The one-man meteorology service offers original forecasting via its "weather lair," and its reports are served to readers with all the delivery of an angry, Caps Lock-engaged internet commenter who also happens to be on the peak of an acid trip.

The main show, Happening's website — or "Webzone," as he prefers — is an anxiety-producing homage to the awful web design standards of the 1990s, featuring a distracting animated background, clashing colors, and the rampant, all-caps, broken "internet English" for which Happening is so well known.

In other words: It's hideous, but at least hilariously so.

According to its

Weather Is Happening's corporeal form poses for a picture in Boston. DEREK KOUYOUNJIAN

"WAT" page, the site serves as "BOSTONS SOURCE 4 NO NON-SENSE WEATHER NO GAMES PPL THIS IS IT THIS IS DEFINITELY IT," explaining its meteorologist is a "WEATHER BE-ING" who traveled to this dimension to warn humans about the dangers of global warming.

Or this one, from Aug. 22.

"U GOT SUM NICE WATER LAST NITE, TH WEATHER LAIR HAD .78 INCHFALL OVR IT BRINGING UP UR MONTHS RAIN TOTES AMOUNT 2 1.38 INCH, WOWOW," he wrote. "UR STIL IN A EXTREME DROWT, DEAL W/ IT"

So, in a nutshell, Weather Is Happening is a pretty weird way to see if you should bring an umbrella to work. And Happening, staying true to surrealistic form, won't provide a straightforward explanation for his bizarre performance art, instead insisting he is an intergalactic being here to warn the people of Earth that these may be their last days.

Reached on the phone, Happening's self-described "corporeal form" sported an affected and often wildly exaggerated Massachusetts accent, saying he was here to help make sure humans "repent to the weather lords."

"[Weather beings] show up on planets where the state of hyper-capitalism is destroying your planet, and tell people that maybe they should repent to the weather lords," Happening's corporeal form explained. "Your planet, like so many ... will just end up destroyed by fancy oligarchs and powerful people that are destroying the atmosphere — against the will of the people, or whatever [alien creature] they might be."

OK. But why type it like that?

"It's more comfortable to write like that," he said. "Not to be an alarmist, but I mean, it's a little bit alarming."

Happening said the service issues forecasts based both on "powerful visions" he receives in his dreams and the amateur weather station he maintains with the help of his corporeal host.

Weather Is Happening also received a $1,000 grant from Boston's Awesome Foundation last December, which allowed the service to expand its operation with a green screen and digital camcorder for YouTube broadcasts, as well as a high-end Davis Vantage weather station.

Eventually, the weather being said he'd love to expand his service to other locations, but just happened to find himself in Boston after his transdimensional journey.

"I'd love to do the whole planet someday," he shrugged. "But right now, all I can do is Boston."

May the weather lords smile upon you, humble weather man.

OUT OF AN MIT CLASS, A FIRM REDESIGNS THE WHEELCHAIR

When Tish Scolnik saw an ad for the "Wheelchair Design in Developing Countries" class in a hallway at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology her freshman year, she had no idea how much it would shape her career. She was still figuring out what she wanted to major in and figured this class would teach her more about mechanical engineering while satisfying her interest in medicine.

Now, Scolnik is the CEO of GRIT, a startup that makes the Freedom Chair — a new type of wheelchair that allows its users to get across all types of terrain.

It was because of that class that Scolnik and Mario Bollini (now GRIT's CTO), first began thinking about the many ways wheelchairs can be limiting.

"We saw how existing [wheelchairs] were failing. They limited people to the pavement and didn't really afford an opportunity to get off the pavement onto grass or onto a trail," Scolnik said. "There are some sort of off-road chairs, but they're very expensive and not used that much."

Metro's look inside Boston's college campuses

Scolnik, Bollini and other students that were involved knew that a successful, all-terrain wheelchair would have to encompass a few key factors: It would have to be robust and rugged enough to work on rocky terrain, it would have to be affordable, and it would have to be easy to maintain and repair.

The students first focused on research, but instead of beginning by looking at a traditional wheelchair's design, they focused instead on the human body and "fundamental biomechanics," Scolnik said. Basically, info on the upper body of how much power it can generate in certain positions.

"Think of lifting weights at the gym," Scolnik said. "It's easier when lifting in certain directions. How can we best use that for propulsion?"

That led to the Freedom Chair's lever system, where bars that you push are connected to the wheels, rather than relying on pushing the rims to move forward. The levers let you get more leverage and torque to push yourself over obstacles, Scolnik explained.

The next thing they needed to know was exactly what types of terrain people wanted to travel on, and so they conducted surveys. From that information came the decision to use as many off-the-shelf bicycle components as possible.

"All the moving parts are standard bicycle parts, so you can service it or customize it at a bike shop," Scolnik said. That includes the option to swap out the automatically included mountain bike wheels for beach or snow tires, too.

In the process of designing the

The Freedom Chair PROVIDED

Freedom Chair, Scolnik said they were continuously prototyping, testing, and building different designs, and when they graduated from MIT, they realized that their prototype was an actual product that people wanted. It was thanks to that class, and MIT's emphasis on allowing students to be hands-on, that led to that.

You're learning the theory but actually putting the theory into practice as well, by actually making something," Scolnik said. "The school's motto is 'mens et manus,' which means 'mind and hand,' so it's a combination of the theoretical and practical."

Scientists find Earth-like planet circling sun's nearest neighbor

Scientists have discovered a planet that appears to be similar to Earth circling the star closest to the sun, potentially a major step in the quest to find out if life exists elsewhere in the universe, research published on Wednesday showed.

The relative proximity of the planet, known as Proxima b, gives scientists a better chance to eventually capture an image of it, to help them establish whether it has an atmosphere and water, which is believed to be necessary for life.

Future studies may reveal if any atmosphere contains tell-tale chemicals of biological life, such as methane, according to a paper published in this week's issue of the journal Nature.

"The key question of our initiative was whether there were potentially life-bearing planets orbiting these stars. We know now there is at least one planet with some characteristics similar to the Earth," said Pete Worden, a former top NASA manager, who was speaking at a European Southern Observatory webcast news conference to announce the find.

The planet, located about 4.2 light-years from Earth, or 25 trillion miles, is the closest of some 3,500 planets that have been discovered beyond the solar system since 1995, according to the paper.

"This planetary system is much closer than any other that we know so detailed investigation is easier," astronomer Ansgar Reiners, with the University of Gottingen in Germany, told reporters on a conference call.

Astronomers got their first hint of a planet circling the sun's small dim neighbor star in 2013. But they needed additional observations, using more precise instruments, to make a definitive call.

An international team of 31 scientists found the planet after careful and repeated measurements of slight shifts in the color of the light coming from its host star, Proxima Centauri, which is a small, dim star in the Alpha Centauri system. REUTERS

New Men's Pleasure Pill Makes ED Remedies Obsolete

Soaring Demand for New Sex Pill that Gives Men Longer, Better and More Intense Sex

By Harlan S. Waxman
Health News Syndicate

New York – If you're like the rest of us guys over 50; you probably already know the truth... "Viagra" doesn't work! Simply getting an erection doesn't fix the problem" says Dr. Bassam Damaj, chief scientific officer at the world famous Innovus Pharma Laboratories.

As we get older, we need more help in bed. Not only does our desire fade; but erections can be soft or feeble, one of the main complaints with Viagra*. Besides, Viagra* is expensive... costing as much as $50.00 a pill.

Plus, it does nothing to stimulate your brain to want sex. "I don't care what you take, if you aren't interested in sex, you can't get or keep an erection. It's physiologically impossible," said Dr. Damaj.

MADE JUST FOR MEN OVER 50

But now, for the first time ever, there's a pill made just for older men. It's called Vesele*. A new pill that helps you get an erection by stimulating your body and your brainwaves. So Vesele* can work even when nothing else worked before.

The new men's pill is not a drug. It's something completely different Because you don't need a prescription for Vesele*, sales are exploding. The maker just can't produce enough of it to keep up with demand. Even doctors are having a tough time getting their hands on it. So what's all the fuss about?

WORKS ON YOUR HEAD AND YOUR BODY

The new formula takes on erectile problems with a whole new twist. It doesn't just address the physical problems of getting older; it works on the mental part of sex too. Unlike Viagra*, the new pill stimulates your sexual brain chemistry as well. Actually helping you regain the passion and burning desire you had for your partner again. So you will want sex with the hunger and stamina of a 25-year-old.

THE BRAIN/ERECTION CONNECTION

Vesele takes off where Viagra* only begins. Thanks to a discovery made by 3 Nobel-Prize winning scientists; Vesele* has become the first ever patented supplement to harden you and your libido. So you regain your desire as well as the ability to act on it.

In a 16-week clinical study; scientists from the U.S.A. joined forces to prove Nitric Oxide's effects on the cardio vascular system. They showed that Nitric Oxide could not only increase your ability to get an erection, it would also work on your brainwaves to stimulate your desire for sex. The results were remarkable and published in the world's most respected medical journals.

THE SCIENCE OF SEX

The study asked men, 45 to 65 years old to take the main ingredient in Vesele* once a day. Then they were instructed not to change the way they eat or exercise but to take Vesele* twice a day. What happened next was remarkable. Virtually every man in the study who took Vesele* twice a day reported a huge difference in their desire for sex. In layman's terms, they were horny again. They also experienced harder erections that lasted for almost 20 minutes. The placebo controlled group (who received sugar pills) mostly saw no difference.

JAW-DROPPING CLINICAL PROOF

	Baseline	Vesele
Satisfaction	41.4%	88.1%
Frequency	44.9%	79.5%
Desire	47.9%	82%
Hardness	36.2%	85.7%
Duration	35%	79.5%
Ability to Satisfy	44.1%	83.3%

AN UNEXPECTED BONUS: The study results even showed an impressive increase in the energy, brain-power and memory of the participants.

SUPPLY LIMITED BY OVERWHELMING DEMAND

"Once we saw the results we knew we had a game-changer said Dr. Damaj. We get hundreds of calls a day from people begging us for a bottle. It's been crazy. We try to meet the crushing demand for Vesele*."

DOCTOR: "VESELE* PASSED THE TEST"

"As a doctor, I've studied the effectiveness of Nitric Oxide on the body and the brain. I'm impressed by the way it increases cerebral and penile blood flow. The result is evident in the creation of Vesele*. It's sure-fire proof that the mind/body connection is unbeatable when achieving and maintaining an erection and the results are remarkable" said Dr. Damaj.

New men's pill overwhelms your senses with sexual desire as well as firmer, long-lasting erections. There's never been anything like it before.

More and more men are seeking alternatives to costly ED prescriptions that don't always work.

HERE'S WHAT MEN ARE SAYING

- I'm ready to go sexually and mentally.
- More frequent erections in the night (while sleeping) and in the morning.
- I have seen a change in sexual desire.
- Typically take 1 each morning and 1 each night. Great stamina results!
- An increased intensity in orgasms.
- My focus (mental) has really improved... Huge improvement.
- Amazing orgasms!
- I really did notice a great improvement in my ability.

HOW TO GET VESELE*

This is the first official public release of Vesele* since its news release. In order to get the word out about Vesele*, Innovus Pharma is offering special introductory discounts to all who call.

A special phone hotline has been set up for readers in your area; to take advantage of special discounts during this ordering opportunity. Special discounts will be available starting today at 6:00am. The discounts will automatically be applied to all callers. Gunmen attack American University in Kabul, students flee

Foreign staff and dozens of pupils were trapped in the compound hours after the attack.

Suspected militants stormed the Kabul campus of the American University of Afghanistan on Wednesday with some students jumping from second-floor windows to escape the gunfire and explosions, witnesses and officials said.

News of casualties was sketchy, but the head of hospitals in the Afghan capital said at least one person had been killed and 14 students wounded in the assault.

"Many students jumped from the second floor, some broke their legs and some hurt their head trying to escape," Abdullah Fahimi, a student who escaped, told Reuters. He injured his ankle making the leap.

"We were in the class when we heard a loud explosion followed by gunfire. It was very close. Some students were crying, others were screaming."

A senior interior ministry official said that elite Afghan forces had surrounded the university and witnesses at the scene said special forces had entered the walled compound where gunfire that had lasted for more than an hour had since stopped.

"There are two gunmen hiding inside the building and a clearing operation is ongoing to eliminate them," interior ministry spokesman, Sediq Sediqi, said.

Ahmad Mukhtar, another student who fled the scene, said the gunmen had got into the university buildings despite security measures including three or four armed guards and watchtowers.

He added that he believed the attack had started at the main gate into the compound.

"I finished my class and was about to leave when I heard a few gunshots and a huge explosion, followed by more gunfire," he said. "I ran toward the emergency exit with other students, climbed the wall and jumped outside."

Kabul police chief, Abdul Rahman Rahimi, told Reuters that the attack began with a car bomb and several attackers had entered the campus.

Islamist militant groups, mainly the Afghan Taliban and a local offshoot of Islamic State, have claimed a string of recent atrocities aimed at destabilizing the country and toppling the Western-backed government of President Ashraf Ghani.

No one has claimed responsibility for the university attack.

It is the second time this month that the university or its staff have been targeted.

Two teachers, an American and an Australian, remain missing after being abducted at gunpoint from a road nearby on Aug. 7.

Taliban insurgents control large swathes of Afghanistan, and local armed forces are struggling to contain them, especially in the provinces of Helmand to the south and Kunduz to the north.

NATO ended its combat mission in December 2014, but thousands of troops remain to train and assist Afghan forces, while several thousand more U.S. soldiers are engaged in a separate mission focusing on al Qaeda and Islamic State.

Chicago's police detective force dwindles as murder rate soars

Chicago police detectives and police officer stand outside the Lavanderia Soap Opera Laundromat and Keeler Food & Deli during an investigation of a shooting on July 25, 2016. GETTY IMAGES

Every two weeks, Cynthia Lewis contacts the detectives investigating the homicide of her brother on Chicago's South Side almost a year ago.

They have had no success finding who shot Tyjuan Lewis, a 43-year-old father of 15, near his home in the quiet Roseland neighborhood of single-family houses.

The death of Lewis, who delivered the mail for 20 years, is one of hundreds of slayings in 2015 that have gone unsolved as the number of homicides soared in Chicago, piling pressure on a shrinking detective force.

In a city with as many as 90 shootings a week, homicides this year are on track to hit their highest level since 1997.

Chicago's murder clearance rate, a measurement of solved and closed cases, is one of the country's lowest, another sign of problems besetting police in the third biggest city in the United States.

Over the past 10 years, Chicago has consistently had one of the lowest clearance rates of any of the country's 10 biggest cities, according to data from the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Chicago Police Department.

Last year, Chicago police had 480 murder cases and solved 223 murders that had been committed in 2015 or before, for a clearance rate of 46 percent, according to Chicago police figures.

That is well below the average national rate of 63 percent, and the average rate of 68 percent for cities with populations of more than one million in the past decade, according to FBI figures.

Chicago, with a population of 2.7 million, has more shootings and homicides than any other U.S. city, according to FBI and Chicago police data, and more shootings by law enforcement than other major cities, according to police department figures on officer-involved shootings compiled by Reuters. Its police department is under federal investigation for the use of lethal force by its officers.

Detectives and policing experts interviewed this week said Chicago struggles to solve murders because of declining numbers of detectives, the high number of cases per detective, and because witnesses mistrust the police and fear retaliation from gangs.

The number of detectives on the Chicago police force has dropped to 922 from 1,252 in 2008. One detective who retired two months ago said investigators are overwhelmed. Not all of the detectives are assigned exclusively to homicide cases. REUTERS

BRIEF

California bill to repeal 'tampon tax' heads to governor

California lawmakers sent a bill to end state sales taxes on feminine hygiene products to Democratic Gov. Jerry Brown, the latest success for a nationwide bipartisan effort to end the so-called tampon tax.

The bill, which would add tampons, sanitary napkins and other menstrual products to a list of necessities like food and prescription medicines that are not taxed, won unanimous support in the state Assembly on Tuesday, Democratic Assemblywoman Cristina Garcia said.

"Fundamentally, this is about gender equity and leveling the field," Garcia, who represents parts of suburban Los Angeles, said in a news release. "Every month, for 40 years of our lives, we are taxed for being born women."

At least 15 states have introduced legislation to repeal sales taxes on menstrual products. New York repealed its tax in June, joining Maryland, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Minnesota and New Jersey.

The movement appeals to Republicans because it repeals a tax and is favored by Democrats, who say it eliminates an unfair burden on women.

"It's great to see both Democrats and Republicans coming together on this important effort all across the country," said Republican Assemblywoman Ling-Ling Chang, who represents the Los Angeles suburb of Diamond Bar.

If Brown signs the bill, the state will lose about $20 million in tax revenue, according to a legislative analysis. REUTERS

Death toll rises as quake flattens towns in Italy

The 6.2-magnitude quake razed homes and buckled roads in a cluster of mountain communities 85 miles east of Rome. It was powerful enough to be felt in Bologna to the north and Naples to the south.

Rescue teams were working through the night to try to find survivors under the rubble that remained of central Italian towns flattened by an earthquake that hit in the early hours of Wednesday, killing at least 159 people.

One hotel that collapsed in the small town of Amatrice probably had about 70 guests, and only seven bodies had so far been recovered, said the mayor of the town that was one of the worst hit by the quake.

"Tonight will be our first nightmare night," said Alessandro Gabrielli, one of hundreds preparing to sleep in tents erected by rescue workers in fields and parking lots, each one housing 12 people whose homes had been destroyed.

Rescuers working with emergency lighting in the darkness saved a 10-year-old girl, pulling her out of the rubble alive, where she had lain for some 17 hours in the hamlet of Pescara del Tronto.

Many other children were not so lucky. In the nearby village of Accumoli, a family of four, including two boys aged 8 months and 9 years, were buried when their house imploded.

As rescue workers carried away the body of the infant, carefully covered by a small blanket, the children's grandmother blamed God: "He took them all at once," she wailed.

Prime Minister Matteo Renzi said the Cabinet would meet on Thursday to decide measures to help the affected communities.

"Today is a day for tears, tomorrow we can talk of reconstruction," he told reporters late on Wednesday as he announced 120 bodies had been found and 368 people had been taken to hospital.

The death toll rose to 159 a few hours later. With people still unaccounted for, the civil protection department warned it could climb higher.

Aerial photographs showed whole areas of Amatrice, last year voted one of Italy's most beautiful historic towns, flattened by the quake. Inhabitants of the four worst-hit small towns rise by as much as tenfold in the summer, and many of those killed or missing were visitors.

Amatrice's mayor, Sergio Pirozzi, said its best-known accommodation, Hotel Roma, which probably had around 70 guests at the time of the quake, had collapsed and only seven bodies had been found under the rubble.

The civil protection agency said it was trying to determine how many people were staying in the hotel.

Most of the damage was in the Lazio and Marche regions, with Lazio bearing the brunt of the damage and the biggest toll. Neighboring

"Last night, I woke up with a sound that sounded like a bomb."

Umbria was also affected. All three regions are dotted with centuries-old buildings susceptible to earthquakes.

Italy's earthquake institute, INGV, said the epicenter was near Accumoli and Amatrice, which lie between the larger towns of Ascoli Piceno to the northeast and Rieti to the southwest.

It was relatively shallow at 2.5 miles below the earth's surface. INGV reported 150 aftershocks in the 12 hours following the initial quake, the strongest measuring 5.5.

Italy sits on two fault lines, making it one of the most seismically active countries in Europe.

The last major earthquake to hit the country struck the central city of L'Aquila in 2009, killing more than 300 people.

The most deadly temblor since the start of the 20th century came in 1908, when an earthquake followed by a tsunami killed an estimated 80,000 people in the southern regions of Reggio Calabria and Sicily.

Your guide to fall album releases

From easy listening to headbanging, we've got you covered. NICOLE HUNTER

Broody — but in a come-hither kind of way

Banks, "Altar," Sept. 30

Banks makes R&B that has a tendency to make you feel like you should be driving a car slowly through a dimly lit street on your way to a booty call — or away from a terrible breakup, depending on which song you're listening to. If you're curious about what to expect from her new album, "Altar," her new singles "F— With Myself" and "Gemini Feed" are good places to start: faint whiffs of '90s R&B and early aughts indie.

THE FUN STARTS HERE

More edge than pumpkin spice

Norah Jones, "Daybreaks," Oct. 7

The nine-time Grammy-winning woman behind everyone's favorite Starbucks album is back. "Carry On," the first single from her album "Daybreaks," sounds like a nice slow pour of a coconut-milk chai latte: sweet, comforting and wholesome, yet entirely of the moment.

Your best friend's new down-ass beat

M.I.A., "A.I.M.," Sept. 9

"I'm a parrot," the provocateur declares in the opening of her recent single, "Bird Song." No matter what you think of her controversial sound bites, murky authenticity and confusing politics, M.I.A. consistently turns out a listenable, highly catchy beat. Her next album, "A.I.M." should have more of the same.

Case in point, the Skrillex work of wonder, "Go Off."

Belt it out

Idina Menzel, "Idina," Sept. 23

Kristin Chenoweth, "The Art of Elegance," Sept. 23

Musical lovers, listen up: Broadway majors (and the original "Wicked" co-stars) Idina Menzel and Kristin Chenoweth are releasing albums in the same week. I repeat, the same week! The only thing that could possibly be more exciting is if they were releasing a joint album, covering the "Hamilton" soundtrack. ... Buy some honey and a box of chamomile tea, because you're going to be doing a lot of belting in the shower this fall.

If you're sick of heteronormativity

Mykki Blanco, "Mykki," Sept. 16

Mykki is the name to drop when you're looking to summon up an innate sense of cool you may not naturally have and impress your friends with your obscure music taste. Mykki, a performance artist turned MC, is at the epicenter of all that is forward-thinking and progressive. He's also a member of the fashion and art worlds' coolest kids (Hood By Air's Shayne Oliver, Count of Milan's Marcelo Burlon and artist Rashaad Newsome, to name a few). Not to mention Mykki is the godfather of queer rap. His new eponymous album promises to provoke your mind while you tear up the dance floor.

So you're feeling oddly confrontational ...

Die Antwoord, "Mount Ninji and Da Nice Time Kid," Sept. 16

Before they became the South African music act who beefed with Lady Gaga, tried to pick a fight with Drake and accused "Suicide Squad" of plagiarism, they were the underground countercultural hit. They're describing their new album as "dark and ratty," which sounds about right.

The Claypool Lennon Delirium made festival rounds this year. GETTY IMAGES

A fantastical world

When Sean Lennon met bassist Les Claypool, a backstage jam led to a new prog project.

CHRIS LEO PALERMINO
@indiecalp
letters@metro.us

Psychedelia and prog rock live in Sean Lennon's bones. It's what his father, John, helped pioneer with the Beatles. It's what he primarily listens to. And it's the taking off point for the Claypool Lennon Delirium, his new psych-pop musical project with Primus' legendary, whimsical bassist, Les Claypool.

"That music attracts me because it's very elaborate and sophisticated," says Lennon, who references the Mahavishnu Orchestra, King Crimson and even Miles Davis as some of the progressive artists he enjoys. "It takes a lot of work. It's ambitious. It's also fun. It's more dreamlike because it takes you from here to there — to different headspaces within one song."

His relationship with Claypool began when Lennon's band, the Ghost of a Saber Tooth Tiger, opened for Primus. After a jam session backstage where the two "clicked," Claypool invited Lennon to his California home studio, Rancho Relaxo, to write. It certainly worked: The duo had completed an 11-song album, called "Monolith of Phobos," about a month later.

"The first song that Les came in with was called 'Captain Lariat' and that sort of set the tone [for the record]," says the 40-year-old artist. "He had this whole mythology about this character named Captain Lariat who was sailing in the salty seas."

The entire album follows this tone, often melding dark, otherworldly tales with dense, proggy soundscapes.

"Bubbles Burst" tells the tale of Lennon's bizarre, fantasylike experience hanging with Michael Jackson's pet chimpanzee at the Neverland Ranch. "The song wound up also being kind of a metaphor because Michael's friends were younger kids and he famously felt kind of childlike himself," adds Lennon. "There was something tragic about the fact that, as a chimpanzee, you can't be kept into adulthood [as a pet] because you become dangerous when you go through puberty."

Another, "Cricket and the Genie," dives into the story of a boy who fantasizes about his antidepressants as they're a genie in a bottle that will solve his problems. "I was sick of hearing about kids who were withdrawing from SSRIs [selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors], or weird antidepressants that were pushed by big pharmacy companies onto people who might not necessarily need those drugs," says Lennon.

While the subject matter seems more serious than the duo's colorful, meandering musical tone, Lennon notes that it's almost intrinsic to their style.

"There's this sort of tension between Les' and my desire to just rock out and make music but also our tendency to tune into frequencies of topical events that are dark or difficult to deal with for all of us," he explains. "It's just there, so it manifests itself naturally."

"Southside with You"

Director: Richard Tanne
Stars: Tika Sumpter, Parker Sawyers

● ● ● ○ ○

The Obamas movie might work even if it wasn't about the Obamas, which is one of the best things you can say about it. If it wasn't about them, it would be little more than a nice indie romance about a date between two nice people, one who's (at first) more into the other than vice versa. It just happens its heroes are Michelle Robinson and Barack Obama. It's a cinematic imagining of the first couple's semi-awkward first semi-date circa 1989, when Barack (Parker Sawyers) talks Michelle (Tika Sumpter), then colleagues, into joining him at a low-income neighborhood meeting, with the express purpose of nudging it into something more. Michelle is irritated at first, but she slowly gives in, and the rest is earth-shattering and annoyingly contentious history.

The young Obamas sure are cute, though Tanne gracefully adds just enough heaviness that the movie doesn't float away. Apart from walking and talking, they don't have much to do. There's the neighborhood meeting, at which Barack shows off his oratory prowess while Michelle tries not to melt, plus a whimsical trip to see that "Do the Right Thing" movie everyone's talking about. Race is a favorite discussion point, as is career ambition and Barack's father. Tanne ladles this on a little too much, if anything, though he goes light with wink-winky references to Barry and Michelle's future. (There's no part where a burly bouncer at a bar with a fox for hair asks for his long-form birth certificate.)

Tika Sumpter is young Michelle Robinson to Parker Sawyers' young Barack Obama in the indie "Southside with You."

ROADSIDE ATTRACTIONS

His leads go subtle, too. Sawyers' O is a bit too close to an impersonation, but he captures the way Obama is cagey yet charismatic. Even better is Sumpter who gives us a version of Michelle who's stern yet flirty, clearly more confident than the man who will one day lead the free world. Watching her swaggering Michelle, it's strange to think of her as a mere first lady, just as it would to watch young Hillary in a movie about the Clintons' first date. "Southside with You" is slight, and that's part of the charm. It's the pleasant movie we deserve after a needlessly contentious eight years. MATT PRIGGE

HANDS OF STONE

IF YOU WANT A BETTER LIFE, FIGHT FOR IT

STARTS TOMORROW

"Don't Breathe"

Director: Fede Alvarez
Stars: Jane Levy, Stephen Lang
Rating: R

Unlike the idiots who break into the wrong man's house to steal his booty, "Don't Breathe" is very delicate. It's a dirty, white-knuckle thriller that knows the genre enough to play with it. It's a home invasion picture, but inverted: Our not-quite-heroes are a gang of young thieves who break into a house only to find themselves trapped inside it. They have company in their mark: a blind Gulf War vet (Stephen Lang), who's willing enough to take them all out.

Toying with genre expectations is one thing, but "Don't Breathe" does something else: It technically gives you no one to root for. To be more precise: It wants your stance on each character to be closer to "It's complicated." There's Rocky (Jane Levy), a single mom desperate to take her young daughter away from a Detroit trailer park. That's nice, but it means exploiting the not-so-good graces of both a cornrowed braggart who actually calls himself Money (Daniel Zovatto) and a nice guy (Dylan Minnette) who can get them access to swank digs because his dad runs a local home security firm. And that also means literally robbing a man blind, one who's come into a hefty settlement and wrestles with both the trauma of war and the deaths of his family.

But that their target — who's credited as The Blind Man — will go above and beyond in protecting his stash makes things complicated, too. Once "Don't Breathe" is good and settled in the house, director Fede Alvarez (of the mega-bloody "Evil Dead" remake) gets to the business of mucking with audience sympathy, jostling our sympathy between invaders and the invader. MP

Edgar Ramirez plays legendary and somewhat infamous boxer Roberto Duran, alongside Robert De Niro as his coach, in "Hands of Stone." THE WEINSTEIN COMPANY

"Hands of Stone"

Director: Jonathan Jakubowicz
Stars: Edgar Ramirez, Robert De Niro

"Hands of Stone" isn't a hagiography; it's not even a movie that straightens a record. It's closer to a yes-man who tells their boss their speech was great, ignoring the part where his pants fell down. The subject is Roberto Duran, one of the greatest boxers who's never scored a movie. You think he'd deserve one: He pulled himself up from the bootstraps of Panama's streets to hold world titles in four different weight classes. He had a punch so hard he earned the eponymous nickname. But here's the rub: In the seventh round of a highly-publicized rematch with

Sugar Ray Leonard in 1980, he abruptly called it off, taking his toys and leaving with the whole world watching.

There are many ways to tackle this. A fascinating film could be made that explored the difficulties of being a star. Instead it goes so far out of its way to portray him as a victim, to spin his rep-shattering act as sort of defensible, that you can't help smelling a rat.

It's a rise-and-fall-and-rise-again romp, whose middle section is devoted to Duran gorging like Caligula on his wealth. It dwells so much on his bacchanal period that it becomes clear this the movie is pulling a bait and switch. In fact, it spends a lot of time pinning all the blame on his manager. "Hands of Stone" may look like a standard-issue inspirational sports saga, but it's really cinema as damage control. MP

Southern Kin's shrimp n' grits PROVIDED

Hungry and homesick?

As students return and new Sept. 1 residents arrive, we know it's only a matter of time before your stomach is grumbling for more than just wicked good clam chowder. If you're searching for a taste of your favorite regional cuisine, here are some of our favorites — some more authentic than others, but all decidedly tasty.

CARLY OLSON

to do

WHERE TO EAT, DRINK & PLAY

Charleston: Shrimp n' grits

Southern Kin Cookhouse, 500 Assembly Row, Somerville, southernkincookhouse.com

Before you scoff at this classic made fancy, rest assured: Southern Kin still cooks up some top-notch comfort food. Its spin on dish features gulf shrimp, spicy green peppers and hearty sausage resting atop creamy white-cheddar grits.

San Francisco: Burritos

El Pelón Taqueria
92 Peterborough St., Boston
617-262-9090, elpelon.com

For those who roll their eyes at Chipotle: This tiny taqueria in Fenway knows a thing or two about Mexican street eats. Its crown jewel of burritos, "El Guapo," is stuffed with rice, steak, beans, all the fixings and — wait for it — fried plantains.

Chicago: Deep dish pizza

Worden Hall, 22 West Broadway, South Boston, wordenhall.com

Calling all Chicagoans: Boston's take on deep-dish is worth a taste. Try the soppressata and garlic sausage pie, a pizza conceived in meat-and-cheese lovers' heaven. Oozing with mozzarella, provolone and rustic tomato sauce, this is a fork-and-knife situation for sure.

Miami: Cubano

El Oriental de Cuba, 416 Centre St., Jamaica Plain, elorientaldecuba.net

Miami's ooey-goey roast pork and Swiss cheese sandwiches with mustard and pickles are a street-food classic. Be sure to come hungry. El Oriental's traditional take features layers — savory, salty and tangy — piled high on a thick toasted roll.

St. Louis ribs

Redbones BBQ, 55 Chester St., Somerville, redbones.com

To experience prime comfort food, swing by this Somerville institution that has a down-home vibe in bustling Davis Square. The standout St. Louis ribs are juicy and smoky with a lip-smacking salty-sweet rub, and, yes, you will get your hands dirty.

Nashville: Hot chicken

State Park, 1 Kendall Square, Cambridge, statepark.is

State Park's take on Music City's most-loved chicken dish is unforgettably crispy and screaming hot. Served with a green bean salad in lieu of the traditional pickle chips, this slightly revamped take is still, at its core, just good Nashville cooking.

Philadelphia: Cheesesteak

Rondo's Sub Shop, 134 W. Broadway, South Boston, 617-269-0274

This hole-in-the-wall sandwich shop serves a mean steak and cheese. Be prepared for a line, but guests agree that the steaming sirloin sub with onions, hot peppers and a squeeze of American cheese is worth the wait.

San Diego: Fish tacos

Dorado Tacos, 401 Harvard St., Brookline, doradotacos.com

We can almost feel the sand between our toes. For just under $3 a pop, Dorado's Baja-style fish tacos are the perfect SoCal street-food fix — lightly battered white-fish topped with housemade crema, pickled onions, cabbage and fresh salsa.

Night at the museum

The MFA is hosting a sleepover — and you're invited.

The Museum of Fine Arts will host an after-hours party as part of its #mfaNOW season of contemporary art. The all-night event kicks off at 6 p.m. following regular museum hours Sept. 17 and will last until 9 a.m. the morning after.

The Linde Family

Wing for Contemporary Art will be celebrating its newest exhibition featuring "UH-OH," the boldly whimsical, modern work of L.A.-based Frances Stark, as well as a screening of Christian Marclay's 24-hour-long video collage, "The Clock." (We challenge you to watch the whole thing — it's possible.)

Melrose's Geoff Thompson has something of a dream job. As the resident beer czar (yes) for gastro-brasserie Foundry on Elm (255 Elm St., Somerville, foundryonelm.com) and its speakeasy sister downstairs, Saloon (saloondavis.com), the 38-year-old makes sure your frosty pint is as well-crafted, hand-picked and interesting as any fancy cocktail. When Thompson isn't cherry-picking the beer program for his two Davis Square haunts, he's digging in at everyone's favorite secret (but really, not-so-secret) sushi joint in Harvard Square.

Best late night meal?

The Franklin Cafe in the South End is one of the few places around town that serves their full menu until 1:30 a.m. every night, and it's all delicious. 278 Shawmut Ave., Boston, franklincafe.com

LAUREN O'NEIL

Brewery's Beer Hall are insanely tasty. They come in a variety of sweet and savory flavors with tons of dipping sauces. 306 Northern Ave., Boston, harpoon-brewery.com

Best hidden gem?

I recently discovered Cafe Sushi in Harvard and was blown away by the quality and selection — plus, they have a huge saké list and excellent service.

Best place to catch up with friends?

Working in Davis, my go-to has to be Sligo Pub. It's just good people all around in there, and even though the crowd has changed a bit over the years, the staff keep the dive character alive. 237 Elm St., Somerville, 617-625-4477

Rockin' steady

Billy Gibbons talks ZZ Top's 'telepathic relationship.'

CHRIS LEO PALERMINO
@indiecalp
letters@metro.us

Five decades of rollicking, blues rock 'n' roll later, ZZ Top frontman Billy Gibbons is just as cool and curious as his early days.

He still has his characteristic on-stage swagger. He's still regularly paying homage to his heroes like B.B. King and blues songwriter Jimmy Reed. And he's still pushing the envelope: Last year, he recorded a Cuban-inspired solo record called "Perfectamundo."

Ahead of shows celebrating ZZ Top's "Greatest Hits Live" compilation (out now), we asked the 66-year-old Gibbons to look back on his musical career.

While earlier material with ZZ Top focused in on blues rock, your records from the '80s shifted to include more synths. What do you think synths added to ZZ Top? They are two approaches toward a common ground. Although the mechanics may differ, the sounds aim to become part of the same thing.

So many years later, you're still playing with all of ZZ Top's original members. What's your musical relationship with them like?

It's steady as she goes. Dusty [Hill] and Frank [Beard] and I have a telepathic relationship, and that's pretty much been the case since we first got together. We communicate with each other non-verbally; it's somewhat intuitive regarding what each of us is about to deliver.

It's an uncanny exchange and it remains a constant. I can probably tell you what Frank shot in golf today without having to ask him and, likewise, Dusty probably knows how many tacos make our take-out order.

What did you learn about music from recording and performing Perfectamundo?

It was really an excursion of putting the beat up front and the rhythm out back. For this unexpected venture into the former unknown, we began to come to grips with the power of the punch and get why it works.

If you go

Massachusetts Independent Film Festival

From tales of art theft, Africa and Alzheimer's to a parallel words fantasy, a tense emergency thriller and a mind-bending story of mass psychology, the picks for this year's Massachusetts Independent Film Festival seem united by a taste for the unexpected, exploring the demands that life's plan-ruining tendencies put on individuals to rise to the occasion and venture into the unknowable future.

MUSIC

Nemes

Like Yellowcard, the charismatic local band Nemes is a punk-pop band with a violinist, but their folk-inflected songwriting chops are much stronger than that boilerplate Floridian mallpunk act, and we're pretty sure Nemes' violinist, Josh Knowles could shred circles around his Yellowcard counterpart. With nearly a decade passed since their first release, they grow ever closer to perfecting their distinctive voice.

Resurrection of Christ (before conservation), Ca. 1520-1524, Giovanni della Robbia, Brooklyn Museum DELLA ROBBI

Della Robbia: Sculpting with Color in Renaissance Florence

When we think of Renaissance sculpture, we probably think first of Michelangelo's marble-hewn masterpieces, but the terracotta work of the Della Robbia family would have been much more visible at the time. The groundbreaking glazing technique of patriarch Lucca, faithfully passed down by his descendants, is now lost, making these gloriously colored pieces all the more mystifying and exceptional.

Fodor's Travel

Dinosaur Diamond Scenic Byway

Distance: 424 miles
Channel "Jurassic Park" on this route that takes in some of the West's top dinosaur sites. Start your trip in Grand Junction, Colorado, and drive northwest to the aptly named town of Dinosaur. Spend a few hours at Dinosaur National Monument, where you can see live digs and a paleontology lab. Continue west into Utah, where you can visit the Utah Field House of Natural History State Park Museum; kids love the garden of life-size dinosaurs. Finish your trip in Moab, where the Museum of Moab has more dino displays.

Route 66's Singing Road

Distance: 38 miles
A drive on the Mother Road (now known as

This land is your land

New Mexico's Sierra Vista off Route 66 BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

Interstate 40) is often at the top of a road trippers' bucket list, but the iconic route has a twist. A strip of "musical road" was installed near the village of Tijeras, east of Albuquerque. A series of rumble strips on the highway is calibrated so if you drive the speed limit (45 mph), the vibrations in your car buzz to the tune of "America the Beautiful." Start your drive in Albuquerque, then cruise east through the Cibola National Forest until you reach Tijeras and the singing road. Continue on to Moriarty, where you'll see some Route 66 relics, such as the Sunset Motel and some old bars. Note: The road only plays music if you're driving east.

Coast to Coast

Distance: 3,024 miles
If you're going to drive across the country, you might as well take the long route: Interstate 90, which connects Boston to Seattle along the longest interstate in the U.S. You'll pass through 13 states, dropping down around the Great Lakes, then up across the Great Plains and the Continental Divide. You could do the drive in about six days, but it's best to take your time and make detours to some of the nation's top sites, including Niagara Falls, Mount Rushmore and Yellowstone National Park.

Presidential Trail

Distance: 1,045 miles
Florida's Presidential Trail strings together an impressive lineup of historic sites. Start in Pensacola, where Andrew Jackson served as Florida's first governor after accepting the land from Spain. Cruise across northern Florida over to Daytona Beach, where you can dine at The Cellar, a restaurant that used to be Warren G. Harding's home. Onward in Central Florida, you'll find some tributes to America's leaders at Walt Disney World's Hall of Presidents and Clermont's The Presidents Hall of Fame. Over ing north and continuing along Lake Ontario on Route 18. A historic detour worth taking is Murphy Orchards and Underground Railroad in Burt. Continue on Route 104 to Oswego to stop at the Fort Ontario State Site, the Safe Haven Museum and the Oswego Lighthouse. Finish at the mouth of the St. Lawrence River at Cape Vincent.

Blue Ridge Parkway

Distance: 383 miles
Dense with aromatic forests, the Blue Ridge Parkway connects Shenandoah National Park in North Carolina and Virginia's Skyline Drive. The Poor's Farmer's Market at mile 178 is a great spot to pick up a quilt and the Blue Ridge Music Center (mile 213) is a must to experience and appreciate Appalachian music. Take in the best views at Waterrock Knob at mile 451 and be sure to explore towns such as Blowing Rock (mile 291) and Little Switzerland (mile 334). The bookend cities of Charlottesville and Asheville are worth a day or two each.

I-90 in Washington
MATT MCGEE, FLICKR

Lake Champlain Byway

Distance: 134 miles
A fresh, green summer escape from muggy East Coast cities, this route skirts the eastern shore of Lake Champlain in northwest Vermont. Driving south to north, the landscape rolls through scenes of farmland, mountains (both the Green Mountains and the Adirondacks are visible) and small towns. Hiking and swimming options abound — the Champlain Islands at the north end of the byway are a prime spot for water. Stop in Burlington to fuel up on the region's local food at Farmhouse Tap & Grill and try some local beer.

Great Lakes

Distance: 315 miles
Begin at Dunkirk Historical Lighthouse on Lake Erie in New York, where you can take a harbor cruise to learn about local shipwrecks. Continue northward on Route 190 around the lake and take a breather at majestic Niagara Falls. Enjoy Fort Niagara State Park to experience living history programs and the stunning views, before travel-

Barbecue Trail

Distance: 1,224 miles
Work up an appetite and pace yourself for the best barbecue the South has to offer. Starting in Holy Hill, South Carolina, the "dark" and "light" pork of Sweetman's makes for the perfect starter. Be sure to order a side of the house mustard sauce. Then, hit the road and follow I-20 west until Birmingham, where Miss Myra's Pit Bar-B-Q's vinegary, mayo-based white sauce will win you over. Next, head southwest to Ocean Springs, Mississippi, to the iconic The Shed, just outside of Biloxi. Here, take in live blues with your pork ribs before continuing on to New Orleans, where you can digest several days of history, music, food and fun. Hit The Joint, where the ribs are said to be the best in the city. Your last stop is Austin for two barbecue landmarks. The Salt Lick is known for its beef brisket. Finally, brave the lines at Franklin Barbecue, hailed by many as the best barbecue in the U.S.

MCGREGOR CAN BE KING AGAIN

PICARD
@dannypicard

The king is back. Or so he says.

Last weekend, Conor McGregor defeated Nate Diaz at UFC 202 by way of majority decision. One would call it a revenge win for McGregor, after he tapped out to Diaz back in March at UFC 196.

Both fights took place at the 170-pound welterweight division, with McGregor having to make the late jump up from 155 pounds, after his original UFC 196 opponent — lightweight champion Rafael dos Anjos — pulled out with a foot injury. That fight was already a jump up in weight for McGregor, who had previously won the featherweight championship at 145 pounds.

After his win on Saturday, McGregor expressed his desire to return to a lower weight class.

"I came up to 170, faced the bigger man, overcame adversity," he said while standing in the octagon. "Now you want this trilogy? It's on my terms. Come back down to 155 and we'll do it."

McGregor began the post-fight interview by grabbing the microphone and screaming, "Surprise, surprise mother [expletive], the king is back!"

As he then proceeded to talk about a trilogy with Diaz, I wondered what exactly he was calling himself the king of. The king of the money game, or the king of the fight game?

First thing's first. If you think there won't be a third fight between McGregor and Diaz, you're nuts. The question is, whose terms will it be on? Will it be on McGregor's at 155 pounds? Will it be on Diaz' back at 170? Or will it be on Dana White's?

According to White, a McGregor/Diaz trilogy won't be happening right away. White either wants McGregor to defend his featherweight title against interim champion Jose Aldo at 145, or, give up his featherweight title and face current lightweight champion Eddie Alvarez.

This is what White is saying publicly, at least. Privately, you have to think he's already planning where and when McGregor/Diaz III will take place. But again, on whose terms?

If McGregor wants to be the king of the fight game, he should certainly stick to his guns on making Diaz come down to 155. Either that or just avoid a trilogy with Diaz altogether.

Even going into UFC 196, I told you I didn't agree with McGregor stepping into the octagon with Diaz. The risk was far greater than the reward. Diaz wasn't a no-name fighter in UFC. But compared to what McGregor was, heading into that first fight back in March, Diaz was, in fact, a nobody.

When I called him that on my podcast over the winter, the MMA season-ticket holders came out throwing haymakers, defending Diaz and his status in UFC. Considering McGregor's status in the sport, I'm sorry, he didn't need to go anywhere near a Diaz fight, not at 170.

But money talks. And next thing you know, McGregor was bulking up and taking on an opponent that he didn't have to, on terms that weren't his.

What happened? The "king" was humbled. Down on the mat. In a chokehold. Tapping out.

It's one thing to talk the talk. It's another thing to walk the walk. McGregor had always done both. Then he and White got greedy. They took it too far. They entered a fight they didn't have to be in.

Now that McGregor has his revenge, it's time to get back to being the king of the fight game. It's time to get back down to 145 or 155 and dominate. Talk the talk. Walk the walk. Be the king.

Just make sure you do it on your terms.

Aries Stabilize your financial situation by locking in your investments and protecting your assets and possessions. Now is not the time to share. Look out for your own interests.

Taurus Trust what you know, not what others tell you. Refuse to let emotional blackmail deter you from doing what's best for you. Learn from your experience and make progress.

Gemini Strong emotions will cause you to do things you normally wouldn't do. Take precautions and force yourself to think before you make a regrettable mistake.

Cancer Someone will withhold information. If something isn't clear, you are best off biding your time until you can figure out exactly what's taking place. Be safe and avoid a costly mistake.

Leo Take charge and get things done. Empty promises will set you back and cost you time and money. Take charge and bring about the changes you deem necessary.

Virgo Refrain from showing your feelings. An argument will not help you solve any of your problems. Listen and learn before taking action in order to avoid backlash.

Libra Stand on guard. There is a lesson to be learned, but if you proceed with caution, it won't cost you financially or emotionally. Protect your property and move on.

Scorpio No one will take care of your business the same way you will. You'll be led astray by someone trying to take advantage of you. Emotionally inspired spending is discouraged.

Sagittarius Don't wait for someone to take the reins. Ask questions and make choices and decisions based on what works for you. Don't give in to others' demands.

Capricorn Emotional manipulation is apparent in the workplace. Don't trust anyone to give you the lowdown when it comes to business; find out for yourself.

Aquarius Improve your surroundings and make adjustments that will deter complaints or criticism. Partnerships will be taxing. Take a moment to rethink and revamp your strategy.

Pisces Be careful when in tense or tempting situations. An honest and open approach to life and relationships will be necessary. Be reasonable and realistic. EUGENIA LAST
